Naser al-Din Shah was also interested in drawing portraits and landscapes and had a liking for topography. Such moments, however, were bound together by a common genetic code: they all emerged out of the drive for novelty, a drive partly explained by the way the processes of cultural displacement affected the author. It was in his era that, for the first time, Iranians visited Europe and Western books were translated. Pesce, Anita and Marialuisa Stazio Lacanzona napoletana. According to Mykola Zerov this situation, on the one hand, left ample room for the Russian language to establish itself, and, on the other, prompted the desire to use a phonetically purified and stylistically improved vernacular. BECCARI was a man of great intelligence, versatility and intuition, who united an exceptional personality and liberality with uncommon integrity and strength of mind.
