Striving together to discover spiritual truth through debate and spirited discussion is out, because no real difference exists between what a person chooses to believe and what is "true for. The same is true for many Christians in Africa and Latin America. However, our preferences about Christianity or even reality itself cannot change the true nature of reality. The tyranny of truth has been replaced, even among academics, for self empowerment. A growing number, especially among the emerging generation, believe that reason and truth are inherently political and subversive. For Lyotard, rejecting metanarratives, like macro modernist theories like Marxism but also scientific theories, means that religion is just another narrative, competing with all the .
